In the event that Mr. Lansing's present expectations are not blocked by some unforeseen obstacle, it is probable that on Saturday morning the State Department will be in a position to publish the Kaiser's promice to abandon the practices complained of by this Government, with a isavowal of the Lusitania attack.

Mr. Lansing already has indicated to Count you Bernstorff that the form of the final disavowal of the Lusitania attack is substantially satisfactory to this Government. The State Department was preparing to accept it formally more than a month ago, but just when the phraseology had been made satisfactory to this Government.
